

FOR UNCLE SAM.

About the Government Employees at Washington and Who They Are.

High Salaried Places in the Various Departments and the Persons Who Fill Them.

DEPARTMENT ROMANCES.

Do you want a government job? The hours are easy. The work is light. The pay is good.

Uncle Sam never scales his wages, and you get your money for the asking every fifteen days. These big government factories never shut down, and the hard times do not affect them, and the man who works for the government can laugh at fate and finances.

As to wages, there is no question about the salary; that is fixed by the government, and as long as you are in Uncle Sam's employ it can't be raised or lowered by the officials just above you. Every two weeks you get the pay office of the department in which you are working and your money is handed over in your crisp new greenbacks, or sometimes in gold. If you are a good man your life is pretty easy to continue, and a great number of these clerks have been in the service for years; some, indeed, have spent a lifetime there, and there is one old clerk here who has been drawing a salary for sixty years from Uncle Sam. There are others who have worked from forty to fifty years, and the number who have been in from one to four years run well up into the thousands. The number who have been just ten years in the service is more than seven hundred, and there are hundreds more who have been in from twelve to fifteen years. A great many clerks have been twenty years or more in the service, and the tenure of government office by no means so uncertain as is generally supposed. The surety of holding a position increases every year, and the civil service rules are being so strict that only the ablest will finally be dismissed at the close of an administration.

SALARIES. As to salaries, in proportion to the amount of work done and the character of the work, they are as high as any laborers of the world. Uncle Sam's factories are run on a high salary basis, and the classified services get, as a rule, from $300 to $1,800 a year. The clerks get $2,000 and upward, and there are fast places in nearly every department which command $3,000, $4,000 and $5,000. The department of justice, for instance, has three offices which bring between $4,000 and $5,000, and the assistant attorneys general each receive as much as a Congressman. In the department of agriculture there is a salary of $2,000 places. The Post Office department has many high-salaried places, and there are a number of hot spots connected with the White House. The best positions, in point of certainty of tenure, are those connected with the State, War and Navy departments. The clerks of the State Department are rather aristocratic than otherwise. They generally know one or two languages, and when it is necessary to advise them they are sometimes sent to consular posts on the other side of the world. The treasury has numerous changes, and it contains over 4,000 employees, and of those 7,000 are women.

WOMEN CLERKS. And just here I want to say a word about these women clerks of Washington. They are the brightest and ablest persons in the service. They do their work conscientiously, and some of them are clerks of Uncle Sam's employes are females. There are two men to every woman in the departments, and the number of women all told amounts to less than 10 per cent. These women are of all ages, from eighteen to eighty, and there is, by the way, one clerk in the Treasury Department who has now reached ninety years. There are many women over sixty and hundreds of young sweet maidens of twenty-five. These women do all sorts of work. Starting from the lowest, the treasury about a generation ago, they have extended their work to all sorts of clerical, and they now pass upon questions of law, examine patents, translate foreign language, and do every thing under the sun. Some of the expert counters of the government are women, and several of the very best bookkeepers of the treasury are women. Women are very fast making their way as typewriters and stenographers, and the chief trouble to the outside employer of labor here at Washington is that so soon as he trains a woman through into the work as typewriter or stenographer she makes an application to Uncle Sam and takes a place at a higher salary in one of the government departments. This experience happens to me a half dozen times, and I have come to look upon my office here as a kind of training school for the government. I have had the dead letter office the most expert translators of bad writing are women, and it would surprise you to know that the Treasury Department has a woman lawyer who prepares the briefs for internal revenue matters and who could probably make more outside of the department by practicing law than she gets by acting as a law clerk within it.

There are a number of women editors in the service here at Washington. The official records of the war of the rebellion are to a certain extent gotten up by the women, and in the case of the late war they find women who are making maps and trading charts for our ships in different parts of the world, and in the government printing office there are women typewriters, women drafters and proofreaders.

Everyone has heard of the pretty girls of the treasury, but you find beautiful maidens in all of these government departments. Secretary Smith directs the handwriting of 1,500 girls, and Col. Lamm has a company of 114 maidens in his Department of War. Postmaster General Russell has hundreds of maidens under him, and in the government printing office there are more than 1,000 women. Many of these come from the best families of the country. Not a few are the daughters of noted generals, governors of states, Senators and Representatives, and how and then you find a relative of a President or a Vice President. The majority of them are women of good education, and with but few exceptions they are educated and refined ladies. They receive salaries ranging from $720 to $1,800 a year, and a large number of them support families. A man has to have very positive qualities in order not to be turned into a machine, and the women are to be commended for their living. Washington is a city of rich young men and a place in which nearly every man lives up to his income. It is a city containing many installment houses, and I know of society women as well as government clerks who buy the dresses which they wear at our fashionable receptions on installments, and who have always paid for them by the time they are nearly worn out. The business houses of Washington expect people to run bills, and they have their settlements made in their language, by pay days at the 15th or the last of the month. Comparatively few of the government clerks have money and only the fewest try to make any money out of that which they do have.

KENTUCKY FISH LAW. In the Evening Star.

It must have been very gratifying to the proprietors of Ayer's Sarsaparilla when the World's Fair opened, to learn that their popular blood-purifier was the only preparation of the kind admitted at the Fair. Yet such was the fact. Out of all the many blood medicines advertised so largely in America, Ayer's was the only Sarsaparilla allowed to be placed on exhibition.

It is a fact that the general assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky: Sec. 1. That it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to catch or destroy fish in any of the running waters, lakes or ponds, other than private ponds, of this State, by means of a seine, net (other than a dip net), drag or trap, except streams forming the boundary line between this and other States. Any one thus offending shall, on conviction, be fined in a sum not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than fifty dollars for each offense, and cost of prosecution.

limit is fixed. It is seldom that a clerk becomes a cabinet minister, though cases of this kind have been known in the past. Horatio King went into the post office and became a clerk at $1,000 a year and he acted as Postmaster General under James Buchanan. There are assistant secretaries in the department who have been clerks, but the majority of the men who go into the great mill of Uncle Sam are ground between the upper and nether mill stones and soon become, as he feared, push and ambition work is concerned, insatiable powder.

You have all heard the story of how Salmon P. Chase came to his uncle, who was then in the United States Senate, and asked for a government job. His uncle told him he would give him a dollar to buy an ax or a spade, but that he would not aid him in digging his own grave in one of Uncle Sam's official cemeteries. Postmaster General Russell told me not long ago that he did not consider the government departments a good place for young men, and there is no doubt but that an enterprising, energetic young fellow had better keep away from the government service. The hours are short and all the leaders are to be had, and good-for-nothings. A man has to have very positive qualities in order not to be turned into a machine, and the women are to be commended for their living. Professional Nursing. It has long ago ceased to be an experiment or a question as to the necessity for the employment of well-trained and qualified nurses in the care of the sick. The physician often feels that the life of his patient depends upon the nursing; and he too often knows that in the vast majority of instances they are in the hands of persons who are ignorant and totally unfit for the position, and who are oftentimes interested.

A nurse should first of all be a lady, she should have superior mental and bodily strength, kindness, patience, firmness and interest.

This Miss Annie Lamar of Grandview, Ind., is that one, with these respects and that she has lately been the most valuable assistant in the care of Rev. Edw. Robinson, of Topeka, Kan., we gladly and unhesitatingly affirm to any who wish the skilled service of a professional nurse.

And any officer whose duty it is to enforce the provisions of this chapter, who shall fail or refuse, upon sufficient information, to discharge the duties imposed upon him by this chapter, shall be held guilty of misdemeanor in office, and shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by fine not less than twenty nor more than fifty dollars for each offense. The largest and most destructive strike both to property and life, is now in progress in all parts of the United States, and it is still spreading.

The Pullman Palace Car Company, of Pullman, Ill., a suburb of Chicago, reduced wages in some departments as shut down in others. For this reason the American Railway Union has boycotted the Pullman cars and is conducting a strike on railroads using them.

The seat of the greatest trouble is Chicago.

In that city last Friday the strikers joined by many idle toughs, became riotous and the authorities were powerless to restrain them. They looted and burned and grew larger. They assembled near the freight depots and in the switch yards of South Chicago and with the falling of the shades of night the destruction dispatched to the scene of trouble and was immediately detained. When the mob saw the soldiers they were infuriated. It rushed upon them and they were driven by a volley from Springfield ridge. The mob began to fall among them they began to disperse. Two of the rioters were killed and several others were wounded, but many or how badly is not known. As their friends carried them off as the fall.

At midnight Saturday night President Cleveland issued a proclamation which practically put Chicago under military rule. He advised all the strikers to peacefully disband if they did not want to get hurt, and that all persons engaged in, or in any way connected with such unlawful obstructions, combinations and assemblage to disperse and retire peacefully to their respective abodes on or before 12 o'clock noon, on the night of July 13.

The Glorious Fourth.

How Cloverport Enjoyed Herself on the Anniversary of Independence.

The big Catholic picnic at Lallest Park was a success in more than one direction.

As a social recreation for people who probably had been closely confined to business affairs since Independence Day was here before, it was delightful; as an opportunity to listen to some of the best informed men display their oratory on the political issues of the day, it was splendid; and as a means by which the building fund of the church was augmented, it was a success.

The day was cloudy and comfortable, unaccounting for more than two thousand people embraced the favorable opportunity of passing a day in pleasant social recreation. Early in the morning people began to pour in in cars, carriages, wagons, on horseback and afoot, and the arrival of the trains tended to swell the crowd considerably.

It was on the program that Hon. David R. Murray would deliver the address in the afternoon, but on the arrival of Mr. Murray the night before, this had to be changed, so that he could speak at Lallest Park in the forenoon, and at Hardinsburg in the afternoon.

The mounted rostrum about 10:30 o'clock and for three-quarters of an hour poured from his eloquent lips such a stream of touching oratory that the hearts were completely captivated. His words sank deep into the hearts of his hearers and carried conviction with them. There was probably not a soul within the sound of his voice that did not love him as a brother, but this speech was a renewal of plighted faith. The people of Cloverport and Breckenridge county were proud to know that a son of the soil had been so honorably and warmly received in other parts of the Fourth Congressional District.

On the 11 o'clock train the Hon. F. W. H. Murray, Democratic candidate for Governor, arrived. He took the stand at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and delivered one of those short, sweet speeches for which he is so famous. The most flowery eloquence poured from his lips in the good people of Breckenridge and he remarks with a most happy compliment to the ladies.

Mr. Hardin was followed by Judge James Allen Murray, Democratic nominee for Judge of Breckenridge county, who made one of his usual logical talks.

Everything during the entire day, whether for entertainment or amusement, was on first-class order. The music, both brass and string bands, were good. The dinner was excellent and Father Nilhaus and the committee of management were complimented on every hand.

Probably two or three hundred people went to Tar Springs on the Fourth and plunked under the shade of those beautiful trees. The children romped through the woods, over the cliffs, across the ravines and all had a general good time.

Aside from these places of amusement, hundreds of people never left the streets of Cloverport, but remained in town all day, occasionally regaling themselves with a cold drink at the various bars, though there was not an intoxicated person in the city.

MURRAY IS THE CRY.

ELIZABETHTOWN, Ky., July 7, 1904.—EDITOR NEWS—Since my last letter to your excellent paper Mr. McKay has been on and off the track for Congress. You will remember that I foreboded his coming into the race in the interest of Mr. Montgomery. I was able to do this because I had heard of the result of the secret canvass of the triumphant which at the Custom-house in Louisville immediately preceding his announcement. But the scheme would not work.

"Mornin'." They soon learned that the people could not be stuffed in this manner. They were indeed sorely perplexed and greatly befuddled.

But what was the next step? Why, sir, middle-class, inside of two days after they had got him on they began to consider the best plan to get him off, when they fell upon the plan of belittling his candidacy. It was announced by "the custom house clique" that McKay's candidacy was the very essence of the wildest dream; a delusion of a lack number in politics, that he would not get a half dozen votes in his own county, etc. Of course this was done to try to convey the impression to the people that they had nothing to do with his candidacy and were as adverse to it as the strongest Murray advocate.

But they have miserably failed in their schemes all round so far and from the present outlook they will be thoroughly convinced on the 4th of August that honesty is indeed the best policy.

Before bidding the "clique" a final adieu I wish to call their attention to a bit of verse that my muse has dedicated to them:

We thought we had a nice, clear track, But now "Jack a dandy," They've got us down on the track, And on the track to stay, Aye, say indeed, just as you say, "The 'man' is late to begin," He will be late only on the track to stay, But also to win.

Then skip out, boys! Montgomery's gone! Our aches are at an end! For Murray is a winner now, An epic of every dollar we can spend, Good-bye, to Henders and Dave May, Joe Richardson and clique, They will win what they desire, They will win what they desire, Then celebrate! Hail to the sun, Hail to the sun, Hail to the sun! The PEOPLE triumph! They have won! Rye bye, Alack, and your "ratty" gang.

If they do not hold a close hand. With business times there are too hard for men to pay for goods with good talk and slick tongues, and their scheme is to sell goods cheap and the best quality for the most reasonable prices. They will do that, and one good thing, they have one price. They sell to all men, women and children alike. No one to ask for any other price, for their prices are marked on the goods and that is what they get. You get goods on credit, you get goods to promise with a bear in your eye that they will be paid for within sixty days without any defalcation. They pay you the cash and they want the cash. They have no money, and that is right. Business is dull and scarce, and they must have money to pay for goods. It must come sure, for wholesale men will not wait three days for their money. They say this is policy enough, and all persons having an open account with them may consider, if they are sixty days old that they are thereby notified to settle them at once. They have plenty of the best dry goods, notions, hats, shoes, hardware, carpets, groceries, tin and wooden ware, and they want to sell them. They will pay a big price for marketing. They are close, clever business men. They pay you the cash and they want the cash. They have no money, and that is right. Business is dull and scarce, and they must have money to pay for goods.
